BETTING ON THE RESULT OF THE ELECTION.

A Witness to Blaine's Marriage-Murder and Suicide-Camp Meeting of Spiritualists.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE RECORD-UNION DOMESTIC NEWS.

Betting on the Result. NEW YORK, August 18th.—The Times ha everal columns of dispatches, showing th ay betting is running on the candidate rom these it seems that at Boston Blain s decidedly the favorite in betting circle and odds, greater or less, are offered on him with a good deal of confidence. One gen eman, a Butler man, by the way, author zed the Herald to put any part of $10,00 on the Republican candidate, and stated he offer was not taken. Another gentle nan stands ready to stake $100 to $75, almost any amount on Blaine. The other day a bet of $1,000 to $800 was made or Blaine. An offer of $100 against $400 was taken that Cleveland does not carry a Stat outside of the Solid South. The same i rue at Buffalo, where, in one instance, it shown that a Democratic politician ba $10,000 in bank to back Blaine with. Som ven bets have been made, however, a other places. The betting is even on the general result, although side-betting or New York, Indiana, West Virginia, etc. are frequent and heavy. At many place there is no betting until Cleveland's lette appears and until after the Ohio election. The Times, in its betting dispatches, says In this city the drift of betting during Julywas slightly in Cleveland's favor, the bes dds being about 100 to 80. When Butle announced his candidacy the effect was t shift the odds against Cleveland in nearly the same proportion that they had formerly been for him. Since then the betting has anged at Middleton's and Kerly & Bliss om 100 to 80 for Blaine to win, with littl isposition to show money at this stage of the campaign. A San Francisco specia announces that betting there is not lively ither way, and generally it is in accord ance with the politics of the persons mak-ing the bets. At Harry Maynard's even bets are made that Cleveland will carry

Prominent Democrats say that most of the etting is going even. A Witness to Blaine's Marriage. New York, August 18th.—A Philadel shia Press' Richmond, Ind., special says saac R. He says: "In thus doing the will of nose who sent me, I sought none of the onors of the Convention, and interfered with none of its proceedings, save to serve a member of a committee on what hould have been its platform of princiles and not of expedients." He then re tes his experience on the sub-committee n resolutions, which was partly embrace n his speech before the Convention. He says that the resolution offered by him to o levy taxes as best to promote Ameri an interests and industries and to foster American labor, failed of adoption. From that hour his candidature in that Conven ion became impossible. He afterwards fered a series of resolutions in favor of romen of the country, declaring that th gal tender currency, under a decision Supreme Court, was now the constitu onal currency of the country; that a -the very rich and the very poorre hurtful to the people of the republic eclaring the public lands to be the neritage of the people; that the Juited States should not permit a ship anal to be built across the Isthmus of anama without its consent; that the ould be frequent changes in Governmen ffices, to counteract the growing autocrati endencies of a life office, and that th nited States should protect citizens every where, and that no American should be pt under its own laws and on its own soil. These discriminations of principles which seem to him to cover most of the live

It was just to myself not to lopt the course which certain pure-minded nd upright and highly moral politicians deem it proper to pursue—take part in the proceedings of a Convention to its end, and hen, without giving any notice to anybody and without protesting, refuse to support its doings. General Butler adds that, notwithstandng the sweet phrases of the resolutions and the expedients to catch votes by indi ection, deception and illusions, and not the declaration of those high principles which sense of the managers of the Prohibition should form the basis of united action of a great party of the people, the country has had no experience for nearly a quarter of a century of what the Democracy would do they were in power; so that people are obliged to require the most explicit pledges from them of intended action before we can put the Government in their hands. fight to make in such a reform is first in But the farmer and the laboring man do money raised by taxation than any other House of Representatives has ever appropriated in a time of peace.
